

Using cell phones onboard aircraft while in-flight will be disruptive to other passengers as people have no respect for others while on their cell phones. People do not know how to be respectful of others space or rights while on their cell phones. Isn't it bad enough that people are rude in public while on their cell phones, can you imagine how rude they'll be onboard where there is only a limited amount of space/privacy?